BE CIVIL

DRAMA/THRILLER/LIFESTYLE & CULTURE/HISTORICAL FICTION
FEATURE FILM - 120 MINUTES RUNTIME

When a black boxer from Harlem gets into trouble, his last expected ally is a religious Jew from Brooklyn and whilst both escaping similar racial persecution, they build an unbreakable bond, and together they push forward the civil rights and cultural revolution of Black and Jewish unity.

Jerome is training to be a professional feather weight boxer, and Danny is working on his own shipping business in Brooklyn. Beaten to the pulp by racial oppressors all his life, Jerome had to teach himself to fight, learning from legends, its the only way he knows how. Danny, ashamed to reveal his Jewish identity, finds himself tormented by Nazi sympathizers who were carted to the US after WWII and prey on the elderly and young kids.

Although fearful for his life, he swears to do something about it.

Meeting at a Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. rally in 1963 in Washington, after being inspired by John Lewis's speech on racial equality, and just as Bob Dylan starts to play. These two superstars would may never crossed paths if it wasn't for this moment, and their meeting will forever change their fate, their family's, and for many thousands more.
